The mojito (pronounced "moe-hee-toe") is a beautiful, very refreshing rum-based cocktail born in Havana. A traditional mojito consists of white rum, sugar cane juice (or simple syrup), lime juice, sparkling water and spearmint (yerba buena). It is garnished with mint leaves and lime wedges.

The exact origin of the mojito is still unclear – one story traces it to Sir Francis Drake's search for a medical tonic while in Cuba. Nowadays, bartenders are experimenting with different spirits and creating delicious variations. Indeed, the mojito has never been more popular. Papa Hemingway would have been proud.
